EDMONTON REPORT

EDMONTON: Every year farmers and members of their families are killed in tractor accidents. There have been several already this year. Alberta in the past two years lost 40 of its citizens in this way. Many others were maimed for life and all hospitalized for varying lengths of time.

In proportion to the numbers operated, tractors kill a higher percentage of persons than cars.

Safety organizations have tried through the years to urge greater care in operating these tricky machines, yet the deaths continue, through carelessness and, in many cases, through lack of knowledge of the things a tractor will do. A new step is being taken.

For the first time in western Canada a large fair has accepted the fact that the tractor has taken the horse's place as the farmer's major "work animal" and doing something to promote safety and knowledge.

Operation Tractor, held at the Edmonton Exhibition last week, in co-operation with the Alberta Safety Council, was heralded as the first of several such competitions which will be held at fairs throughout Canada and the first step in leading to contests which will seek the nation's top tractor jockey.

Feature attraction of the contest was the driving competitions. The contestant, a bona fide farm resident 16 or over, selected his tractor from several makes donated for the Operation by the Alberta Wholesale Implement Association (Northern Section). He pulled up to the starting position and from his seat he could see the hazard course laid out around the grounds formerly used for judging draught horses.

At the word go, spoken by the judge, he pulled forward, then backed up to hitch on to a two-wheel manure spreader, housed in a narrow "garage." From there he sweated his way through the course, trying not to strike or knock down the wooden poles that marked it. The course called for both forward and reverse motion and, throughout, a great deal of twisting and turning.

At one point the driver had only four inches to spare as he maneuvered his machinery between two poles. Back at the starting position he had to back his manure spreader into the garage to complete the course.

Not only was he timed on his tour of the track, he received time penalties for knocking down poles and for such points as a jerky clutch, gear clashing, excessive speed, spinning wheels, killing engines, excessive use of brakes, drawbar riding and standing.

But, you say, that won't teach any one tractor safety. Ah, but that's the gimmick that draws the contestants. Scoring also is based on the answers given in a true-and-false safety quiz, that sees five seconds added to the contestant's total for every wrong answer.

Then, before he takes to the course, he must give his tractor an inspection, as if he was taking it out for a day's work in the field. It is amazing what a contestant will miss.

"One of the fellows looked into the radiator and remarked that the water was low," one of the judges said. "He didn't even notice that there was no radiator cap."

In the belting event, the contestant had to line his tractor up with another in preparation for a belt operation. He puts the belt on, tightens it, then when satisfied with the alignment calls to the judge for a ruling.

After last week's competitions a lot of the contestants will go home to practice in preparation for next year. Officials believe the idea

He was credited with 7 strike-outs, he allowed one walk and one man was hit with a pitched ball. R. Jensen received for Siler. Claresholm's battery was Allie McDonald and H. Glenn to Ward McDonald. A. McDonald struck out two men and allowed one walk. Glenn replaced him in the latter part of the third inning, and struck out 7 men and

"We hold competitions with the idea of improving livestock breeds" one official said, "so why not contests to improve the operation of the tractor?"

Third Game Necessary

Elks Beat Stavely To Even Baseball Semi-finals

Vulcan Elks, with a decisive win over Stavely Wednesday evening, forced a third game in the baseball league semi-finals.

In the first game of the best two-out-of-three games series, played at Stavely on Sunday, Stavely beat Vulcan by a 2-0 score in a closely-contested game. Vulcan battery was Jancola to Wynn.

In the second game, played at Vulcan Wednesday evening, July 22, the Vulcan Elks swamped the Stavely crew by a score of 26-5, to force a third and deciding game. Clarkson and Dann led the Vulcan crew on a hitting spree that swamped the Stavely pitchers and Jancola, pitching to Wynn, turned in a fine job on the Vulcan mound.

The winners of the third Vulcan-Stavely game will meet the winner of the Graman-Claresholm series for the Foothills-Wheatbelt league championship.

Heads Lions

CHICAGO—S. A. Dodge, Detroit, Mich., is the new president of the International Association of Lions Clubs, (Lions International). He was elected by unanimous vote at the 36th annual convention of the Association, which closed at the Chicago Stadium Saturday, Dodge succeeds Edgar M. Elbert, Maywood, Illinois.

The convention concluded the most successful year in the history of Lions International, according to the report made by R. Roy Keaton, Chicago, Ill., Director-General of the Association. He reported that during the twelve-month period ended June 30, 1953 there was an addition of 915 new Lions Clubs and 26,058 men to the roster of the association, and that the total as of May 31, 1953 is 10,260 clubs and 47,013 members. He added that Lions International is the largest, strongest and most active service club organization in the world, with Lions Clubs in 45 countries on six continents.

Hail Losses Are High This Year

Hail struck at scattered points in the district this past weekend, with some damage reported at Kirkcaldy and in the north and east parts of the district. A damaging hail storm again hit the Lomond district.

This has been a bad hail year throughout the province, with claims reported to be already three times those of last year.

Crops hailed earlier this season are reported to be making a good comeback, but much will depend on the weather this fall. Fall rye and winter wheat crops that have escaped hail damage are expected to yield well.

The weather has been generally fair and warm and a general rain at this time would be welcomed by most farmers.

Church Vacation School Closes

Vacation school which was held last week at the Vulcan Church of Christ under the leadership of Anne Chapman and Berna Gay Koehl, came to a close on Friday with a picnic at noon and a program in the evening.

Those who aided with the handwork in the school were Mrs. Bud Stapley, Mrs. Hank Rutberg, Don Schneider and Mrs. Chester Marshall. Miss Betty Hollister was pianist.

Awards were given at the program to the children who had brought the most to the vacation school. Merla Robertson received first award; Karen Smith received second award; Ren Scotney, Calvin Rutberg, Russell Chow and Billy Cutforth tied for the third award. Each were given a religious picture.

The program consisted of songs which the children learned during the week, a pageant, and special music. Gloria Jean Jones and Barbara Brinton played piano solos. Faye Schmidt sang "Beyond the Sunset."

A tea was held at 3:00 p.m., July 15, at the Vulcan Church of Christ in honor of the mothers of the vacation Bible school children and the ladies of the church. The program consisted of accordion playing by Anne Chapman, leader of the vacation school, tape-recording of the children's singing and of the women's, and a talk by Berna Gay Koehl.

Two special features were held for the Vulcan young people last week.

Monday evening at the Rutberg place following a weiner roast, C. Albert Vernon, minister of the West Covina Church of Christ, West Covina, California, brought a devotional. Mr. Vernon is a former classmate of James Chapman, minister of Vulcan Church of Christ.

Tuesday evening the young people enjoyed a progressive dinner. The dinner began at the Schneider home with a delicious salad and then progressed to the Hansell home for the main course. Desert was served at the country home of Cal Hollister where Ross Hollister, brother of Cal Hollister and teacher in the Puget Sound College of the Bible, spoke.

Hear Chuck Wagon Race Re-broadcast In England

A letter received by Mr. and Mrs. Tom Lucas from friends in England who lived here during the war mentions that they heard a recording of the Calgary Stampede chuck wagon races broadcast over the BBC.

They were surprised and pleased to hear this recording as it brought back memories of their stay in Canada, and were thrilled when Commodore Allen's Vulcan outfit was announced as the winner.

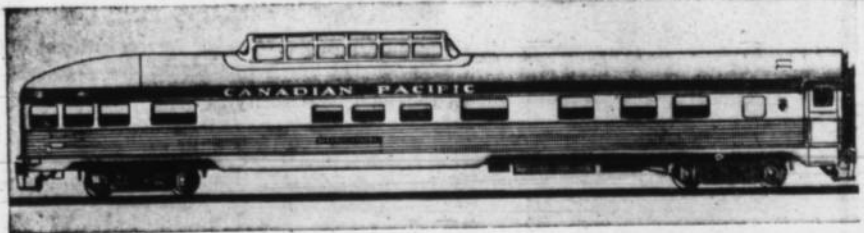

This is but one instance of the worldwide coverage given the famous Calgary chuck wagon races and Vulcan has received much favorable publicity as a result of Commodore Allen's outfit winning the world championship last year and this year.

There is little, if any, pause in the movements of birds. They travel north in the first half of the year and almost immediately a return movement is under way and man is still very puzzled regarding the "how," "why" and "wherefore" of the matter.

That Highway

Work has started on re-gravelling of that stretch of Highway 23 between Carmanagay and the Corner Store 12 miles north of Vulcan.

It is reliably reported that little or no attempt is being made to fill and pack the potholes and otherwise smooth out the road before the gravel is applied. If this is the case, most of the new gravel will soon be in the ditch.

We hope the report is wrong. We hope the re-gravelling job will make a decent highway out of this worn-out stretch of road. If it does, we'll all be pleased. If it doesn't, it will mean that a lot of money has been wasted.

We'll just have to wait and see.

New Farm Hazard

Bottles thrown indiscriminately into fields by thoughtless persons are becoming a pest to Alberta farmers likely to prove more costly than the periodic outbreaks of weeds and wild oats.

Many farmers reported this spring that broken bottles lying in their fields had cost hundreds of dollars worth of damage to tractor tires. One farmer in the northern part of the province was forced to spend the entire day picking up empty whiskey bottles left in his field last fall by hunters, before he could safely start his work.

Many hunters this fall should realize that the bottles they left lying around last year in fields to cause damage, loss of time and in a few cases fire, directly influenced some farmers in posting "no shooting" signs. —Drumheller Mail.

Pension Fund in the Red

Canada's old age pension system in theory, is financed by the 2-2-2 tax formula comprised of an extra two per cent on all corporation income taxes, and extra two per cent on personal income taxes up to a limit of $60 per person per year, and two per cent out of the 10 per cent sales tax. Only in theory, however. Old age pensions are consistently costing more than the government can get from these special taxes which are meant to pay for them.

During the last fiscal year which ended March 31, the scheme incurred a deficit of $99.5 millions, or nearly $7 for every man, woman and child in the nation. The first two months of this fiscal year added another $10.5 millions to the deficit. At the present rate the deficit for this year could be another $50-$60 millions.

The amount of the deficit to date was covered by a so-called "loan" from the treasury, which means a contribution from the general body of taxpayers. Revenues from the old age pension taxes for the last year amounted to $223 millions while pensions cost $323 millions in round figures.

In the first two months of this fiscal year, the two per cent on corporations yielded $8.8 millions; individual incomes yielded $17.6 millions; and the two per cent sales tax yielded $18.7 millions for a total of $45 millions. Pension payments ran to $55.6 millions.

A large deficit was inevitable in the first few months because personal income taxpayers did not start to put up their two per cent contribution until July 1 of last year. But the continued deficit seems to indicate that the 2-2-2 formula is inadequate to cover the costs of the pensions.

While the Canadian people must pay the whole cost of pensions one way or another, as they pay every bill contracted by the state, the scheme is now seen to fall far short of the contributory principle on which it is based.

At the end of May nearly a third of its cost, $110 millions, had been advanced to the fund by the government without counting any of it as budgetary expenditures. This cannot go on forever. If this year's deficit reaches the expected total of $50 millions or more, the government may have to decide between raising the taxes for old age security, and trying to cover the deficit out of revenue. —Dauphin Herald.

Safety in Farm Operations

Surveys have shown that the accident rate increases alarmingly during the spring season. The tractor is the worst offender, says C. A. Cheshire, Extension Engineer, Alberta Department of Agriculture, but practically all tillage, seeding, or cultivating equipment can be dangerous when not properly handled. This year, keep safety in mind during the rush of spring work, he advises. Ten of the more obvious safety rules are listed here.

1. Don't let children operate tractors—it's a man sized job and a man sized machine.
2. Never allow youngsters—or even adults—to ride as passengers on the tractor. There's only room for the operator.
3. Keep away from soft ditch banks or steep side hills. For work crosswise of the slope widen the tractor tread to its maximum.
4. Slow down, and keep the wheel brakes locked together. Road gear and individual wheel braking makes a lethal weapon of the tractor.
5. Stop your tractor before refuelling.
6. Keep power-take-off shields in place.
7. Never operate the tractor clutch from the ground—use a hook to hitch that implement from the tractor seat.
8. Stop to adjust the machine you are pulling.
9. Don't wear loose or ragged clothing near any machines.
10. Never operate a machine while drowsy—stop and take a nap, then work refreshed.

These are only ten of the safety rules that must be observed constantly, Mr. Cheshire says. There are hundreds more. Don't try to break them. Remember, the operator has to do the thinking not only for himself but for his machine as well. Results may be tragic if his thinking isn't clear.

Edmonton Report

A new sort of exhibition competition, that probably will become an annual event, is Operation Tractor, at Edmonton this week. Prize money totalling $400 will be won by farm boys and their fathers who show the best knowledge and care of their machines, as well as driving ability over a hazard course.

While Alberta's school children have already forgotten the sight of their text books, about 1,500 of their teachers went back to school last week—not to teach but to learn. Six weeks of their two-month summer vacation is being used to further their ability as

KEEPING CUT FLOWERS*LONGER . . .

With a little care the life of cut flowers can be prolonged considerably. As Christmas is a time when flowers are often given as gifts, Dr. A. P. Chan, Chief of the greenhouses at the Central Experimental Farm at Ottawa, offers some simple hints on the proper treatment of cut flowers.

Sometimes flowers are wilted or show signs of wilting soon after arrival. They can be revived by cutting the stem ends and immersing the flowers in water right up to, but not covering the blooms, and placing them in a cool dark location for six hours or even longer.

When putting the flowers in vases cut the stems at a slant to provide a wide, fresh entrance for the water to penetrate. If they have a big woody stem, smash the stem up for about two inches to allow for a freer intake of water.

Cut flowers are susceptible to drafts and excessive heat and will last longer if these conditions can be avoided. Close to windows and immediately above hot water pipes or hot air registers are not suitable places for flowers. Actually the average living room is too warm for most cut flowers and it is always advisable to move them at night into the coolest place in the house. Forty degrees is ideal, but even a few degrees cooler than the living room would be beneficial.

Some florists supply a flower preservative when flowers are ordered. Used according to directions it will help to prolong the life of the flowers. It does this by slowing down the bacterial growth in the water which clogs up the stems and prevents the flowers from getting sufficient water. And as it also prevents slime from forming, frequent changes of water are unnecessary.

He's changing the nation's landscape

You may see the result of what he is doing in the city's changing skyline—or out where the corn grows tall... in the mushrooming suburbs—or in the new look of Main Street in a mellow old town.

Where many a vacant lot once stood, he helps fill it with a fine new school. Where you used to see a building that was an eyesore you may now see a new apartment house, store or post office that he played a role in providing.

Thanks in part to him, many houses rise here and there, or row on row, in community after community. New black ribbons of asphalt tie town to town. Somewhere, a new bridge is built.

New industrial plants, too, are sometimes the by-products of his helping hand. Perhaps one of them has provided you with a job. Who is he?

He represents all the millions of life insurance policyholders in Canada. And it's money from their premiums, which life insurance companies invest for them, that makes possible such improvements as these throughout the nation.

So, if you are a life insurance policyholder building security for your family and yourself, you're also helping to build a better Canada!

COYOTE CONTROL

The provincial government's campaign to control coyotes in southern Alberta is proving successful. The scarcity of coyote tracks, the fewer raids on farmyards and the absence of the familiar night howl suggests a greatly depleted coyote population.

It would appear that the most effective method of killing coyotes carried out by government men in southern Alberta is with the use of poisoned horse meat. The poison 1080 was used and one horse carcass was sufficient to provide 10 baits. The 1080 powder was mixed with a gallon of water and injected into the horse meat with a two way pump.

Although this formula has been used in Alberta for only two winters, it has proved so effective that the long-sought wail of the nocturnal coyote has faded to little more than a whisper.

YOUR MONEY!

We will budget for Government's legitimate needs... we will stop budgeting for bloated surpluses which—in three years—took from the people's pockets the staggering sum of $1,618,000,000 more than the Government needed.

We will end the shocking conditions in our Defence Department which the Government's own investigator, (Col. G. S. Accounting records in a chaotic condition and of little use in determining the nature and extent of irregularities... THE Blackfoot and Crow Indians called it Turtle Mountain because they believed it was moving slowly... wouldn't make camp under its shadow.

But white men came... built the coal mining town of Frank at the foot of Turtle Mountain... and lived there peacefully until April 29th, 1903. Then it happened! Early in the morning the ground began to tremor and shake... and suddenly... NINETY MILLION TONS of limestone thundered down the mountain with the roar of a hundred freight trains!

In 100 awful seconds one of Alberta's strangest tourist attractions was born out of havoc and destruction. Boulders as large as houses hurtled down Turtle Mountain to bury 70 persons, numerous homes, the entire mine plant, railway sidings and 3,200 acres of fertile land to a depth of 100 feet.

Today the scene still fills the narrow valley with its grayness of destruction and desolation... leaving people to look and wonder exactly how those people felt who were taken so suddenly. Although it is a tragic sight, hundreds of tourists annually journey to Frank and the Frank Slide... another Alberta tourist attraction and part of "OUR HERITAGE".

Listen to "OUR HERITAGE" featuring JOHN FISHER over the following Alberta Stations:

Wednesday... CHAT - 7:30 p.m.
CFAC - 8:30 p.m.
Thursday... CJCA - 10:15 p.m.
CKRD - 9:00 p.m.
Friday... CFGP - 8:15 p.m.
CJOC - 8:15 p.m.

This week you will hear the fabulous story of "The Alaska Highway".

Thousands of tourists annually pause to read this sign at the foot of the great mass of boulders that mark the Frank Slide of 1903.

"Give Us This Day Our Daily Bread"

(Calgary Power)

Bread, familiarly called "the staff of life" is usually served in some form, at least twice a day or oftener. It is recognized as an integral part of our daily diet and it is just taken for granted. However like so many other items of modern living, the present day "staff" has evolved after much struggle up through the centuries from antiquity.

Bread was first made by cave-dwellers in the Stone Age. Later, we have record of it in ancient Egypt, and today at the Metropolitan Museum of Art in New York a basket of bread may be seen in a remarkable state of preservation. It was discovered in a 3,500-year-old Egyptian tomb and it is reputed to be the oldest in the world.

During the reign of Henry III in 1272 all bakers had to pay a toll of a halfpenny per basket of bread sold on weekdays and three halfpence on Sundays. The villagers did their own bread baking in communal ovens, built by the feudal lords, and for the use of these ovens they paid a small fee. There was no white bread at that time—the best bread being similar in color to the present whole wheat loaves. The very poor people had to eat black bread made from rye, peas, beans and sometimes acorns.

In 1800 black bread reached its highest price — a small loaf selling for about fifty cents. These high prices resulted in daily riots and plundering, but it was not until 1822 that the sale of bread by weight was made compulsory. Many people were poisoned by "cheap" loaves made from mouldy flour mixed with lime, plaster-of-paris and chalk. Even white lead was sometimes used to give bread a better color. To safeguard the public against such adulterations, in 1872 the Food and Drugs Act was enacted.

In mediaeval London it was the daily duty of the mayor and sheriffs to examine the bread for sale in the markets and if a baker were found to be dishonest, he was dragged through the streets on a hurdle with one of his loaves hanging from his neck. If the offence was committed the second time he was put in the pillory where he was exposed to the ridicule and abuse of the public—and a third conviction meant the loss of his oven and his expulsion from the Bakers' Guild.

The first white loaf appeared in 1820. It was made with the aid of a Hungarian miller to satisfy the whim of a wealthy finicky customer. Towards the close of the century new machinery took the place of the old stone mills, with the result that white bread became available to all. However, the health of thousands of workers, who lived almost entirely on bread, was affected. The cause was unknown then, but now we know that they were suffering from a vitamin B deficiency caused by the removal of the wheat germ and bran from the flour. This deficiency has been largely overcome today, by the wide variety of foods used in our daily menus.

In Sweden rye bread is popular, while in Iceland the lichen is scraped off the rocks and dried, then ground into flour. The strangest bread of all is eaten by an African tribe. It is made from the powdered bark of trees.

PRAIRIE GARDENER

(Camrose Canadian)

Over a period of years we have urged our readers who are at all interested in gardening to listen to the Sunday morning program under the name of "The Prairie Gardener." We have always considered it to be one of the C.B.C.'s most valuable contributions to the culture of Western Canada. Now the author of this program is honored by the North American Radio Industry, receiving a top award for a program in its field, covering both the United States and Canada. If we have our facts properly assorted, The Prairie Gardener was originally a Lloyd-minster man. Be that as it may, he has introduced the art of raising flowers and shrubs to thousands of prairie people who before the advent of his program took only a casual interest in gardening. The simplicity with which he applied his own experiences to the benefit of those around him, the encouragement to those who had floundered around, not knowing the causes of their failures, and the inspiration he gave to so many beauty starved settlers to make a start towards the culture of flowers, were but a silent part of his program.

With The District Agriculturist Hugh Michael

Canada Thistle on Increase

During the past few years the prevalence of Canada Thistle has increased many times over in most of south-western Alberta. This weed has become a serious pest and problem on many farms and along many road allowances. In some districts facilities are being provided to assist farmers in taking care of roads adjacent to their land, in other cases farmers have provided or modified their own spray equipment for this work, and in the majority of cases nothing is done. In the meantime the thistles are having a hay day, and are adding their toll to the expense and loss of efficiency in crop production. An expense farmers can scarcely afford in view of rising costs of production coupled with declining prices for some farm products.

No doubt the greatest contributing factor influencing the spread of thistles has been above average rainfall. They usually get a start in low lying land which is too soft for the farmer to cultivate and are spread from there by wind, water and birds.

Under climatic conditions such as we have experienced during the past few years thistles are difficult to control. However there are several methods which, if followed through will certainly help.

Where patches are isolated on one part of the farm and where a little extra hay or pasture can be utilized seeding to forage crops works well. Alfalfa is one of the most effective forage crops to use for this weed as it tends to thrive under the same conditions. A mixture of alfalfa and brome grass works well, as the grass tends to fill in the blank spaces. In drier areas crested wheat grass will control thistles.

Good cultivation during the summer fallow year gives the thistles a run for their money, especially if they are kept down right up to freeze up. Carrying on the cultivation until growth ceases in the fall is important, if this is not done the previous work, time and expense will likely be wasted as far as thistle control is concerned.

Where fall rye can be grown it can be used to advantage by either seeding into the stubble after the crop is harvested or by seeding between August 15 to September 1st after summerfallowing. Seed the rye at a heavy rate of at least one and one-half bushels per acre. Harvest the rye as soon as ripe and cultivate until freeze-up.

WHEAT POOL SCHOLARSHIPS

The Alberta Wheat Pool announces the inauguration of scholarships at the University of Alberta to the value of $500 a year for two rural students from Alberta high schools. One to a student whose home is in the southern half of the province and one in the northern half of the province. These students have the right to select their own courses.

These scholarships are restricted to students whose homes are on farms and the awards will be made on the basis of a satisfactory record in the Grade 12 examinations for complete senior matriculation and of the need for financial assistance. In applying for one of these scholarships the Alberta Wheat Pool's local field service personnel should be used for reference.

For the purpose of this award the southern half of the province is defined as that part of Alberta inclusive of and south of township 44. Application forms are available from the Registrar, University of Alberta. The final date for receiving such forms at the University is August 10.

First of its kind in Canada is this new wheel truing machine now in operation at the new $1,000,000 diesel plant being completed by the Canadian Pacific Railway at Nelson, B.C. The unit, shown in operation here, permits diesel locomotive wheels to be machined without removing either the wheels or trucks from under the locomotive, and will be used in the servicing of diesel locomotives operating on the Kootenay-Kettle Valley divisions of the C.P.R. in southern British Columbia. Its purpose is to restore by means of specially designed milling cutters the normal contour of the tread and flange of wheels worn by operation of locomotives over frequent, tight curves on the right-of-way through mountainous territory.

Not Like The Old Days?

P. H. Walker, Irrigat. Agronomist Experimental Station, Lethbridge. With the passage of time, memories of bygone days often become tinged by colourful daydreams. This is particularly true of the weather. To keep the record straight, it might be interesting to examine some of the figures for the past half-century.

Precipitation has been measured continuously at the Dominion Experimental Station at Lethbridge since 1906. Earlier, from 1902, records were kept in Lethbridge by a well-known oldtimer, the late

Mr. C. B. Bowman. More precipitation, a total of 27.92 inches, was measured in 1902 than in any year since, and even more remarkable is the fact that 92 per cent of that total fell in the three months May, June and July. In the first six months of 1902, a total of 19.15 inches was measured, exceeding by more than 3 inches the long-term average annual precipitation.

After over 50 years, these records still stand, and 1902 may be said to have been a truly extraordinary year. Precipitation figures for more recent years, and particularly for 1953, show the inconsistency of our rain and snow fall. A total of 8.17 inches of rain, measured in June this year, has never been exceeded in any other June. Only two other months have been wetter—May, 1902 with 11.27 inches, and May, 1906 with 8.60 inches.

Does our data at the Station are not sufficient for us, to enter into the argument. Was there more rain in the early years of this century than there has been recently? Twelve-year averages show that more rain and snow has fallen in the last twelve years than in earlier twelve-year periods. The average annual precipitation for the period 1941-52 (inclusive) was 17.26 inches; for 1929-40, 15.28 inches; for 1917-28, 15.03 inches, and for 1905-16, 16.00 inches. The average annual precipitation for the first twelve years recorded, 1903-13, was 15.35 inches.

Total annual precipitation at Lethbridge has varied from 7.63 inches in 1918, to 27.92 inches in 1902. Until the end of June, 1953, a total of 16.95 inches of precipitation has been measured.

Today, the older generation can tell the younger that these are not like the old days, but the vagaries of the weather are such that the older generation of fifty years from now also will be saying, "These are not like the old days."

Growing Winter Wheat in S. Alta.

Many farmers who have had considerable difficulty in planting their spring crops this year are thinking that they should grow more winter wheat. Other farmers who have had their winter wheat crops severely damaged by streak mosaic are wondering if they should turn back to spring crops. The time is approaching when the decision will have to be made, says J. E. Andrews, Cereal Breeding Laboratory, Experimental Station, Lethbridge.

There are a number of advantages in growing fall wheat. It allows for a better distribution of farm labour since it is seeded in the fall and is harvested earlier than spring wheat. If adequate growth is obtained, winter wheat will give protection against soil erosion and also will aid in wild oat control. Unless severe winter killing or other damage occurs, it will usually outyield spring wheat.

Heavy losses due to the virus disease streak mosaic are unnecessary. A farmer need only look at the undamaged fields of his neighbors to realize that this disease is not impossible to control. He can grow a crop of winter wheat relatively free of this disease if he takes adequate precautions. Most, if not all, fields of winter wheat in southern Alberta which have been severely infected with streak mosaic have been seeded in August and have had near them a stub
